Global Peacemakers Program

Undergraduate students from around the world meet in New York City for a look at the United Nations Headquarters. Under the leadership of Elisabeth Anne Delgado, President & Founder of Kinderenergy, students will learn what diplomatic, political and social factors are influencing children and the environment, through economic development, global health and efforts at peace and through partnerships. Kinderenergy has Special Consultative Status with the United Nations Economic & Social Council.

This two-week program at the United Nations introduces inquisitive students of economics, diplomacy, medicine, international law, engineering, architecture & journalism to the mission of Kinderenergy, the pressing events affecting Earth’s children today and the quiet diplomacy being used within the UN to eradicate global poverty and bring economic prosperity and peace to the world. Students “get their feet wet” as they advocate within the UN and the international community for greater recognition of children as incredible catalysts of global development and peace. Children are Earth’s intelligent energy source.

The program is structured around a series of seminars, classes, meetings at the UN and visits with dignitaries and diplomats within foreign missions to the United Nations in New York City. Students will learn about challenges in sustainable energy, development economics, green building, global health, disaster risk reduction and what life is like as a dignitary representing one of the 193 member states of the UN.

We will have briefings by experts from the energy industry, the UN Foundation, United Nations Office for Disaster Risk Reduction, Global Foundation For Democracy & Development, the Missions of Denmark, Mexico, Nepal, Bangladesh to the United Nations and Regions Refocus.

Students will be learning from 8:30 am – 6:30 pm Monday thru Friday with evenings & weekends to sightsee and enjoy New York City and surrounding area.

Students for global CHANGE in environment, politics, health, PEACE, Architecture, economics, journalism, engineering sports & ENERGY are finding solutions to global problems today!
“...there is something absurd, and deeply troubling, about tens of millions of impoverished children being out of school, often in conflict zones, because of a lack of financing so modest it should make us blush. When we fail to educate a poor child today, we may well meet that child again later as a member of Boko Haram or Al-Qaeda, at a cost of billions of dollars...”
